ANATHEMA

The character suffers direct harm when exposed to a particular substance. They cannot voluntarily enter the same space with it. If they are touched by it, they instantly suffer the damage of a Rank 3 attack roll that automatically succeeds. This continues each turn until they are separated from the substance or are killed or destroyed.

Damage caused by Anathema ignores all damage reduction the character has and cannot be healed by their Healing Factor.

BERSERKER

The character often loses control of their temper. Any time they take physical damage, they must make an Ego check with a TN equal to the amount of damage done. If they fail, they go berserk and must charge at full speed into combat with the enemy who hurt them.

Being berserk gives the character an edge on all close attacks and adds +2 to their Melee, Resilience and Ego defenses. However, it takes -2 from their Agility defense, and they cannot use ranged weapons.

If the character defeats the enemy who hurt them, they must then charge to attack the next closest foe.

At the end of the character's turn, they lose 5 Focus. When their Focus is reduced to the point that the character could not voluntarily spend any more Focus—or if there are no enemies in sight—the berserk state automatically ends.

The character has something weird (or even wonderful) about them. This causes people to have strong reactions to them, both good and bad. They have an edge on all Ego checks to persuade people inclined to like them and trouble on all Ego checks against people inclined to dislike them.

Characters with the Weird trait can spend more than 1 point of Karma on a single action check. After they have spent all their Karma, they can also spend Karma points that they do not have, up to as many as their rank in a single day. However, the edges these expenditures grant do not come free. Every time a character spends an extra point of Karma or borrows a point of Karma they do not have, they incur a bad-luck debt that may backfire on them spectacularly at some point in the future. This is called Bad Karma.

Any time a character with Bad Karma rolls a Fantastic failure on an action check, the action not only fails, but it deals the character Focus damage as if it was targeting them instead.
